[Le]tter from Mr. Morrison.

[illegible], June 29 —The draft of a letter [pre]pared by Mr. Morrison of the [committee], in answer to Secretary [Sherman's] request to have subpenaed from [illegible] witnesses, expected to give te[stimony] touching the freedom of the [illegible] [f]rauders and intimidation of [illegible] East and parts of West Felici[ana], [Mr.] Morrison says in the course of [illegible]

[illegible] congress to which you refer and [illegible] of congress with which you are [illegible] authorize the statement that [illegible] of said witnesses so numerous [illegible] and whose testimony at least is [illegible] belief. It is needless to add that [illegible] hundred witnesses again repeat [illegible] testimony, 500 other witnesses at [illegible] to they, will be ready again to [illegible]

[illegible] as follows

[illegible] is made against you in [illegible] house of representatives un[illegible] is sitting, the resolutions, [illegible] yet heard, shows upon [illegible] allegation that to influences [illegible] Weber and James E Anderson in [illegible] had made them verbal prom[ises] [illegible] to them giving them assur[ance] [illegible] reward. If the committee [illegible] your statement before it, you [illegible] a letter and making such [illegible] material the evidence of the [illegible] to have summoned may be [illegible] number of persons killed threat[ened] [illegible] office or otherwise intimi[dated] [illegible] the committee, it can in no [illegible] personally. If the committee has [illegible] you to deny the allegation [illegible] letter and gave these promises [illegible] such allegation will be neither [illegible] supported by evidence of the num[ber] [illegible] Feliciana parish and whether [illegible] sought to steal their votes [illegible] therefore constrained for the [illegible] decline compliance with [illegible] subpenaed as witnesses the [illegible] by you, all of whom have [illegible] of them twice and others three [illegible], and their testimony is [illegible] accessible to all in the rec[ord]

[Sherman's] Reply to Morrison.

[Secretary] Sherman has addressed to Mr [Morrison] [a re]ply to the draft of a letter prepared [illegible] answer to the request of the [committee to sub]poena a hundred witnesses [illegible]

[illegible] under which your committee is [illegible] of inducing certain election [illegible] to falsely and fraudulently [illegible] the election of November, [illegible] and part of West Feliciana [illegible]. As to the allegation that said [illegible] fair, and the protest to the [illegible], I ask that witnesses [illegible] names be subpenaed and ex[amined] [illegible] and place as you may order [illegible] to their former testi[mony] [illegible] there were crimes proved of [illegible] raids by armed Democrats [illegible] houses, shooting, intimida[tion], [driving] from home, expulsion [illegible] sheriff, violence at polls [illegible], etc. The secretary adds [illegible] of what he says the [illegible] authorize him to state as [illegible] result of the testimony [illegible] will be

[illegible] the parishes above named, [illegible] before and at the time of said [illegible] at the time and place of [illegible] preparatory to said elec[tion] [illegible] and executed sys[tematic] [illegible] of Republican voters by [illegible] intimidation forced by means of [illegible] by armed bodies of men [illegible] property of Republicans in[illegible] acts of violence, killing wounding [illegible] Republicans, breaking into and [illegible] and stores, and other outrages [illegible] such a state of terror was inau[gurated] [illegible] Republicans in these locali[ties] [illegible] to leave their homes and prevent [illegible] for the campaign, and the rank [illegible] utterly disheartened. A large [illegible], against their wish either [illegible] voting or to vote the Democratic [illegible] intimidation was carried to su[ch] [illegible] large Republican majorities [illegible] at every election after the [illegible] prior to the election of 1876 [illegible] converted into large Demo[cratic] [illegible], so that in some of the precincts [illegible] parishes—to wit East Feliciana [illegible] Republican vote was polled

[illegible] by this testimony to show that [illegible] parties concede the existence of [illegible] intimidation, though the Demo[crats] [illegible] political in its origin [illegible] by this testimony to show in es[illegible] that it was political, di[rected] against Republicans as such [illegible] violence was so timed as to pre[illegible] time of registration and to pre[illegible] that it ceased after the elec[tion] [illegible] victims of violence and intimi[dation] [illegible] most active leading Republi[cans]

[illegible] to show, and will show as I am [illegible] by the records of congress [illegible] the following list of enormities [illegible] parishes (these were [illegible] above stated), namely East [Feliciana] [illegible] 5, wounded 3 hung 2 [illegible] at 4, expelled from office and [illegible] 8; by threats of violence 5 [illegible] to individual persons 11 In [illegible] killed 25, wounded 1 hung [illegible] at 7; expelled from office [illegible] home, 11, by threats of vi[olence] [illegible] burnt out, 1

[illegible] application to the committee at [illegible] I wish to give the committee [illegible] action thereon before it shall [illegible] to Louisiana If that [illegible] his decision to send such [illegible] and that committee shall [illegible] bring all witnesses [illegible] this application [illegible] by the committee and [illegible] to Louisiana as an [illegible] named subpenaed and ex[amined] [illegible] the committee or sub-commit[tee] [illegible] best to have them appear

[Secretary] Sherman, in giving [illegible], says he refused to give to [illegible] offer of testimony [illegible] till the committee should [illegible] delay, without notice to him [illegible] published this morning purporting [illegible] reply of the committee to [illegible] request, in which he is denied the [illegible] gist of the whole matter whether [illegible] was [illegible] [illegible] whatever [illegible] committee is now [illegible] instruction. The [illegible] the secretary cannot prove that [illegible] free and fair [illegible] letters writing of an [illegible] [illegible] the letter [illegible] committee wants [illegible] know [illegible] fraud or [illegible] justify [illegible] in what they did. If so that [illegible] of the injury [illegible] and [illegible] proper then it may become proper to ascertain [illegible] has been [illegible] justice and fairness

THE POTTER INVESTIGATION

WASHINGTON, June [illegible] The [Potter] committee [illegible] a telegram from [illegible] Packard [illegible] to appear [illegible] committee in New Orleans at [illegible] o'clock to day and it is understood his examination [illegible] take place there

Mrs. Jenks appeared at [illegible] produced here this [illegible] absent the letters were not read. Mrs. Jenks [illegible] examination still refused to [dis]close the name of the party to whom she dictated the so called Sherman letter. The party was [illegible] against the wall in the parlor when she entered and when she left her amanuensis was sitting at [illegible]

Springer made some inquiries into [the] [illegible] mental witness husband and was answered that at present he was merely employed as a witness before the august body carrying on this investigation

Witness then inquired why Springer was interested so much in the welfare of her husband [illegible] was informed that she had not [illegible] personage.

Mr. Jenks objected to this [illegible] and said she had made Springer [illegible]

William E Chandler [illegible] telegraph him from Fifth Avenue Hotel early on the morning of Nov. 8th though dated Nov. 7th to Gov. Gorman California J. H. Mitchell Oregon S. B. Packard New Orleans Gov. Chamberlain South Carolina Senator Conover Florida in each of which [illegible] stated that Hayes and Wheeler were elected if they had carried these states and in [illegible] of which he also counseled the Republicans to watchfulness against possible Democratic frauds. While in Florida Chandler received a telegram from President Grant saying [illegible] will remain in Florida until the vote of the state is decided. Mr. Chandler did not know of the existence of frauds in Florida [illegible] the telegraph was handed [illegible] Matthews who expected [illegible]

Chandler maintained that in his opinion there never was a fairer result [illegible] than this than the result of the Florida [illegible]

By Butler—Have you a list of presidential appointments made subsequent to the Florida [illegible] upon your recommendation

A—Yes sir. Those that I remember are as follows: Maj. J. C. Humphries collector at Pensacola; Gov. Stearns member of [illegible] commission; Judge McLin associate justice of [illegible] of New Mexico; [illegible] to Gov. Stevens clerk in the treasury department; a young man named Phelps a local Republican in Florida appointed to the treasury department, has gone to Paris with Gov. McCormick; Jos. B[illegible] who was inspector [illegible] at Tallahassee where there was an alleged fraud of 48 votes a clerk in the treasurer's office; Jas. Bell a county judge in Florida was appointed clerk in the land office; Capt. Bennis was recommended for auditor in the treasury but was not appointed; E. W. Maxwell in the department service of the attorney general and who visited Florida in the capacity during the count, was appointed a lieutenant in the regular army. Black and Vance colored men elected officers at [illegible] box [illegible] were appointed, the former in the custom house at Philadelphia the latter a messenger in the sixth auditor's office. J. W. Howell deputy clerk of Baker county was appointed collector of customs at Fernandina.

Chandler said the first intimation he had that he considered trustworthy that the Packard government had been broken up was from Senator Matthews about ten days before the 4th of March and recited an interview with the senator in which witness desired Mr. Hayes should not stop at a private residence, but at some hotel to avoid [illegible] which might be occasion [illegible] Matthews remarked that since the witness took so much interest in the new administration he wished he would use his influence with President Grant toward having him recognize the Nicholls government and that the recognition would [illegible] that of the Hamptons [illegible] stated to Matthews that he did not [illegible] [illegible] the Nicholls government [illegible] by the same [illegible] that President Hayes was [illegible] upon Matthews said he had looked into that matter and there was no [illegible] declared elected by the electoral college and the other by a legislature. Matthews [illegible] witness the impression that it was [illegible] had been arranged that by recognizing the Nicholls and Hampton governments it would not affect the U. S. senate and that Republican senators would be sent from those states.

Samuel P. Potter a Washington correspondent testified that Mrs. Jenks stated to him she came to Washington in behalf of Gov. Packard for collector; that she called on Secretary Sherman [illegible] thereto but had not met with a very warm reception that the secretary had given her assurances in New Orleans that her influence would go quite far in appointments [illegible] said Judge Campbell had forged the jurat to the [illegible] and is in [illegible] and that the [illegible] document was safe in New Orleans

The American Crews in England

LONDON June 29 The Times speaking of the American crews which are to participate in the four oared races at Henly on the Fourth of July says: The Showacaemettes style is not such as we are accustomed to see in England as they dribble their oars along the water and bucket forward, rowing a very short stroke and though opinions differ considerably as to their speed they at present have not covered the course in anything like first rate time. It is reported they rowed over Watkins course in [illegible] 17¼ but this was a lake and it is doubtful if they can at present compass the Henly course against the stream under nine minutes and a half. The average time taken for the last five years by winners of Steward's challenge cup four coxswain less [illegible] has been [illegible] minutes thirty seconds but the Steward races very easily [illegible] fifty six seconds. Of Olympia and vicinity its business and prospects it gives [illegible] and says [illegible] is the most beautiful town in Washington territory

Olympia Transcript: For several years past many newcomers have shunned the district of country between Puget Sound and the Columbia river, on account measurably of the barren aspect of the prairies the railroad withdrawals and consequently the higher prices of land and because there was no one to point out these excellent places while there is a world of good land all through it. Lately there has been more interest taken in finding these lands and new comers are taking advantage of it. Within a few days past ten homesteads have been taken in this county, and there are hundreds of others left

We have been furnished with a copy of the list of premiums to be given at the coming territorial fair to be held at the fair grounds near Olympia from October 2d to October 12th inclusive. The association organized in 1871 with a capital stock of $20 000 in shares of $10 each. Since that time its usefulness has greatly increased. Its officers for 1878 are President L. G. Abbott, vice president C. W. Lawton, treasurer G. A. Barnes, secretary, L. P. Venen. The premiums awarded are designed exclusively for articles of home manufacture and for stock raised or owned in the territory. Diplomas may be awarded to owners of stock brought from without the territory for the purpose of exhibition or sale within the territory, for agricultural implements, patented improvements on household utensils, and labor-saving machinery of all kinds

VOLUNTEERS AND THE INDIAN WAR.

On Friday last Gov. Chadwick telegraphed Gen. McDowell that he was ready to call for volunteers whenever the general might think it necessary and would act on it. We do not suppose that an answer favorable to the suggestion will be returned. Nor few that we are aware it would empower Gen. McDowell to authorize such call for volunteers. That Gov. Chadwick should under existing circumstances manifest a willingness rather to exceed the requirements of actual duty than fall short of it is quite a natural thing in one who as executive realizes the extent of the responsibility which rests upon him in times of excitement and danger. Nevertheless we fear the tendency of the governor's mind is rather more in the direction of a call for volunteers than any facts yet made known will warrant. Undoubtedly circumstances might arise which would render such a call not only expedient but necessary. But it does not appear that there is as yet any such conjuncture nor at present can we see a high probability there will be. Of the great dangers telegraphed by Quincy Brooks and others we hear no confirmation. Advices from the Klamath Indians are not of a nature to produce special alarm. People thereabouts may feel somewhat uneasy as settlers in exposed situations always do on such occasions. Every rumor in these times of suspicion and alarm naturally grows by repetition. Of course if there is actual need of protection in any locality it is the duty of the state to furnish it whether called for by the general government or not. But there is also need of the exercise of greatest prudence in order that the state may not be run heavily into debt for a service not actually demanded by a regard for the public safety. Participation of the state in the Modoc war accomplished little or nothing toward chastisement and subjugation of the Indians, but it created a very considerable debt. If the general government would authorize or request a call for volunteers so that the men could be armed supplied and paid by the United States the call then would be entirely proper provided the military authorities think it needful but it is scarcely to be supposed that the general government will take this action. The troops in the military division of the Pacific available for the present service, are certainly too few to make speedy work of it. The war department is, however, more likely to send others from the east than to employ the services of volunteers. Unless there be clearest reason for it—reason which does not yet appear—we trust the executive will not issue a call for volunteers. Any hasty and panicky action probably would be regretted. To proceed on rumors, or to suffer the judgment to be warped by accidental or secondary circumstances, certainly would not be an advisable course. Should it become necessary to act for the preservation of life and property in exposed situations the people of the state will most cheerfully bear the cost. But no expeditions are wanted mainly for the benefit of commissaries, sutlers and speculators in war scrip. The sum of all is that it would appear to be wise to wait for further developments. The action of Gov. Grover at the time of the Modoc war was hasty, and this should serve as a lesson for the present time. It is the duty of the general government to punish the Indians and to pay for the property they have destroyed. The only duty of the state is to do what it can to protect the lives and property of its citizens, should the force now at command of the government in this department prove insufficient for the purpose. But there is need of exercising prudence about it because there does not yet appear to be any such general danger as to justify a call for volunteers on the part of the state and as people who were in the more exposed localities have mostly withdrawn ere this to places of safety, the main business of a military force would be to hunt the Indians down. And this is the proper business of the military arm of the United States.

REMARKABLE COINCIDENCE.

Reference to some of the facts of history will show the tremendous extent and vast significance of the encroachment made by Russia on Turkey through the late war and it will appear more remarkable still when it is considered that acknowledgment of this encroachment is the basis of the settlement agreed to by the congress at Berlin. One of the secret articles of the ever famous treaty effected on the raft in the river Niemen in 1807 between the Emperor Napoleon and the Emperor Alexander was an arrangement respecting the dismemberment of the Turkish empire, almost identical in scope and effect with that now conceded by the representatives of the great powers of Europe. Everything down to the line of the Balkan is taken away from Turkey and virtually goes to Russia. The secret article of the treaty between Napoleon and Alexander ran thus: "If, in consequence of the changes which have taken place in the government of Constantinople, the porte shall decline the intervention of France or in case, having accepted it, the negotiations shall not have led to a satisfactory adjustment in the space of three months France will make common cause with Russia against the Ottoman porte, and the two high contracting parties will unite their efforts to wrest from the vexations and oppressions of the Turkish empire all its provinces in Europe, Roumelia and Constantinople alone excepted." This negotiation did not come to light till after the fall of Napoleon but English writers have always admitted that if it had been carried into effect it would have been much the same as the extinction of the Turkish empire and an enormous aggrandizement of Russia. An eminent English historian speaks of the agreement as an "abandonment of nearly all Turkey to its hereditary and inveterate enemy." Of course it called for similar concessions to the then leading objects of French ambition. This was provided for in other secret articles regarding the prosecution of the war against England and the cession of the Spanish peninsular to the French emperor. But the czar wanted [illegible] Napoleon never would [illegible]. It was rivalry between them for the possession of this matchless [illegible] the principal cause that led afterward to the [illegible] which carried Napoleon into his desperate chances—the Moscow campaign. What it is now curious to note is the fact that a congress of the leading powers headed by England makes the very concession to Russia as to the European territory of the Turkish empire which Napoleon offered as a compensation for vast advantages against England; and that the latter now consents to an adjustment which in former years she would have opposed at any cost as a virtual absorption by Russia of the Ottoman empire. This shows what Russia has actually gained by this last struggle. It is an adjustment which seventy years ago when Napoleon proposed it she considered of immense advantage to herself. And it is a restriction of the claims of Turkey to which till now England never would have consented. Looking upon the present result it may well be asked what England gained by her great effort to stay the progress of Russia in the Crimean war.

Again it is reported from the front that the hostile Indians are withdrawn from the locality into which they were being pursued by the troops and are moving north toward the Columbia river. This would be a bold plan but it is not an impossible one. No doubt the people in localities which might be raided by such a movement will be well on their guard. Having received this notice they should now be doubly vigilant. The very audacity of a movement like this should it not be anticipated by the country upon which it would fall might contribute much toward its success. If their coming were not expected the hostiles might pass rapidly through the country on the line indicated, and perhaps kill many persons. They must escape in some direction and it is natural to suppose that as usual with Indians on the war path they will attempt sooner or later to seek refuge in British territory. Should they do so the important matter to ascertain is what route they will take.

The army appropriation bill makes a sweeping reduction of allowances to army officers for quarters. Thus Gen. Sherman is allowed $150 per month for a house instead of $300 as heretofore. Gen. Sheridan's allowance for the same is reduced from $105 to $90 per month and the commutation of quarters or the rent for houses for all other officers is cut down from $18 per room to $10. This gives a captain only $30 a month.

COURSE OF THE PRESIDENT.

Washington correspondence of the New York Herald, reviewing political matters as the session of congress drew near its close said:

In the present state of parties in congress if the president is a man who knows his own mind and has a positive policy he can impress it upon the country. It is very certain that if Mr Bayard or some man like him had been president the present session could easily have been turned to great and positive use to the country. An administration with a policy could have carried every point of that policy with ease. The majority of members in both houses were sincerely desirous to help and benefit the country, and were ready, to a great degree regardless of party lines to support a definite policy and it only needed a leader and the two houses being of opposing politics no one could impress himself on both except the president. Unfortunately for the country, Mr Hayes has no views. He is honest and in favor of economy but he has no policy, and declared frankly at the outset that he meant to have none. His notion is that the executive is to execute the laws that the congress is to adopt them without influence from him and he has persistently adhered to this theory. He vetoed the silver bill because it attacked the national credit, but any of his predecessors would easily have prevented its passage. He may veto the river and harbor bill, because he is opposed to indiscriminate and wasteful appropriations, but it will be passed over his veto. Probably no president ever exercised so little influence upon legislation and probably no president ever had so great opportunities of influencing a congress for the good of the country if he had chosen to. A considerable part of the session he spent in a private war with the senate over the appointments, in which at last the senate brought him to submission and the best that can be said of him is that he held out much longer than General Grant. He failed in the struggle, just as Grant broke down because he wanted to appoint his own friends and favorites and to get them confirmed; the senate forced him at the last to appoint also men pleasing to itself. Civil service reform after many promises has once more failed and will fail until the tenure of office act is repealed.

The struggle within the Republican party in the earlier months of the session resulted in the complete victory of Senator Conkling, who made himself master of the senate and of his party, and has continued so without appearing in the least to care for the supremacy which he secured. Mr Conkling led the senate in putting Mr Kellogg into the seat which rightfully belonged to Mr Spofford and he succeeded here because the president with combined optimism and timidity refused to move his own few friends and supporters to oppose Kellogg. Next came the struggle over the New York nominations, and here Mr Conkling fought a battle which gave him with Democratic help the supremacy in his party. He beat the president and Mr Hayes felt his defeat very keenly, and acknowledged its force by declining to try again. Thereafter Mr Conkling ruled in the committees as well as in the senate; the president's nominations were rejected or pocketed as he chose and when at last Mr Hayes surrendered and sent in nominations of a kind satisfactory to Mr Conkling the senator did not even do him the poor honor of reporting them. He deputed this duty to his friends Senator Spencer and others. Mr Conkling's victory has been one of the completest which the senate ever gained over a president and it has borne its fruits. It has made him the leader and master of his party in the senate, and so far as he chose to be in the house also though there Mr Blaine's influence is still felt by the Republicans, and his advice has constantly been sought by them.

England and the Congress.

(From the New York Herald June 15.)

Nearly every point of importance announced as an element of British policy in the famous Salisbury circular of April 1, 1878 is abandoned by the British government in its recent agreement made with Russia through Count Schouvaloff, the points of which agreement were first made public in the Herald of May 30 and the text of which has just been given by the London Globe. In the Salisbury circular England laid down as a cardinal principle of the case and as the text of the law that no power could repudiate any part of its obligations save by consent of all the other nations with whom it entered into such obligations. England now violates that principle by agreeing privately with Russia upon a wholesale negative of the treaty of Paris and two powers have no more right to make such an agreement than one to act in that way without concert. Salisbury held as absolutely inadmissible the proposed treatment of Bulgaria, which is now accepted with variations that do not radically change the effect of the San Stefano stipulations. Bessarabia is given up. England will raise the money for an indemnity, and the passage of the Dardanelles is left just as the San Stefano treaty left it. All these points that England agrees to are points she denounced in detail and now the government is indignant at the publication of its surrender because it did not care to let the people know just yet how much it had yielded to Russia and also perhaps because to make this agreement in the circumstances was a kind of contempt of the congress.

CITY.

STRAY CHILD.—Last Friday about 10 o'clock a little girl named Sarah Myers, aged about 9 years, left her home, in the lower portion of the city. The child was sent by her mother to a neighboring grocery store to make some trifling purchase. Sarah failed to return home, and search was made for her without success. She was seen Friday evening, between 7 and 8 o'clock, on First street, by some one who recognized her, but did not know at the time that she had left home. Since that time nothing has been seen or heard of the girl. As may naturally be supposed the parents are nearly distracted over the absence of the child. The police have been notified, but the most thorough search failed to discover her present whereabouts. We understand that Sarah has left home several times of late, once going to Oregon City to see her aunt, who was living there. She and her little sister, several years younger, were sent to that place. This aunt is now living in San Francisco, and as the child cannot be found here, her parents are of the opinion that she has taken the steamer Eldee, which sailed hence last Saturday morning, and gone to the bay. The aunt has been telegraphed, and when the steamer arrives there the truth will be known.

THE SMALLPOX.—Last Thursday a dead Chinaman was found in a house on the west side of Second street, between Alder and Morrison. On examination of the body by a competent physician it was decided that death had resulted from smallpox. The body was buried at once. The committee on health and police and the chief of police began immediately to investigate the matter. A person who has had the loathesome disease was employed to go through the Chinese quarters of the city and carefully examine the premises. This was certainly a wise and prudent step to take, and resulted in the discovery of two more cases. A Chinaman living in one of the low and filthy rookeries on the south side of Alder street, between First and Second, was found sick with the contagion, and another on the opposite side of Alder street. The proper authorities were notified immediately and these patients removed to the pest house. There is not another case in the city, so far as can be discovered. Every precaution has been and is being observed to prevent the disease from spreading, so there is no reason for unnecessary fears. Persons should be careful and observe the usual sanitary precautions—vaccinate, diet and keep clean.

PREPARING TO REBUILD.—Hon. J. S. Smith contemplates erecting a large brick building on the site at present occupied by the old American Exchange hotel. That gentleman expects to arrive in Portland in a few weeks, when the work of demolition will at once be commenced. The old wooden structure, which has stood for so many years at the corner of Front and Washington streets, will be razed to the ground and the rubbish carted away to some less prominent locality. Several years ago a stone foundation was built a portion of the way on the river side. Since that wall was built, Mr. Smith has purchased the lot situated north of the old building. When the water shall recede so as to enable work to commence, the foundation wall will be continued for the whole distance. By the time the old structure is torn away, it is thought that the river will have reached a stage sufficiently low to permit the stone masons to begin operations. Before the winter rains shall commence to descend it is hoped the new building will be completed.

PACIFIC COAST PATENTS.—The following list of patents have been issued to inventors of the Pacific coast: Thomas McGlew, San Francisco, machines for crushing and grinding ores, etc.; Thomas Newell, Sacramento, millinge separators; Berthold Greenebaum, San Francisco, pockets for garments; John [illegible], Bloomfield, Cal., spark extinguisher; John A. Peer, San Francisco, gear cutting machines; Jacob Price, San Leandro, [illegible] press; Philip Hinkle, San Francisco, [illegible] for street elevators; Lionel Varian, San Francisco, broom sewing machines; [illegible] Moreau, San Francisco, button hole sewing machines. Trade marks—Charles R. [illegible], San Francisco, soda and cream of tartar; M. Ehrman & Co., San Francisco and New York, coal oil.

AT THE FRONT.—The children of the Unitarian Sunday School have their little building fund toward the new Church. It seems, we have also been told by a kind friend, that for every dollar they earn, another dollar will be added. Their fund thus amounts to $137. On Tuesday evening (to-morrow,) the Sunday School gives a "Scopticon entertainment," at the chapel, with an attractive programme. In this connection we note that the contract for the church has been let; the work will soon be pushed forward and the laying of the corner stone will take place at an early day.

HANDSOME CLEARED.—The graduating exercises which came off last week at New Market theater were not only most entertaining and reflected the highest degree of credit on the High School of Portland, but proved a financial success to a very gratifying degree. The total receipts were in excess of $180. Out of this sum $25 was paid for the use of the theater, $20 for music and $15 for tickets, programmes, etc., leaving the handsome sum of $120 over and above all expenses.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. Thomas Carroll, who has been employed in working on the new steamer which is being constructed at the [illegible], fell, a few days ago, down the hatchway with a heavy plate of iron on his arm and broke two ribs. He was brought down to this city and is now being tenderly cared for at St. Vincent's hospital.

INCIPIENT FIRE.—Saturday afternoon an alarm of fire was sounded, caused by the roof of the [illegible] building on the northwest corner of Washington and Front streets catching fire. The department arrived promptly at the scene, but a few pails of water timely applied saved the day, and the engines were not called into requisition.

BOUND TO APPEAR.—Albert Ernst, the young German who was arrested a few days ago, charged with burglary, had a preliminary examination in police court Saturday. He was held to await the action of the grand jury, his bond being fixed at $250. On furnishing the required bail Ernst was released.

RIFLE CLUB ELECTION.—The German American Rifle Club held their election on Friday night. The following officers were elected for the term commencing July 1st: President, [illegible]; secretary, Jos. Willms; treasurer, Peter Esser; captain, S. Helbock.

CIRCUIT COURT.—Judge Deady will announce his decision this morning in this court in the case of Lockhart et al, vs. The Coos Bay Black Sand Mining Co.

N. B.—For additional local matter see fourth page.

PERSONAL.

H. D. Sanborn, Esq., returned Saturday evening from a flying trip to Lewiston.

A dispatch was received a few days ago from Hon. J. S. Smith, who was then in St. Louis, Mo. The telegram stated that he would start westward at once and expected to arrive in Portland about the 15th of July. We are gratified to state that Mr. Smith's health has greatly improved, and on reaching this city he expects to take personal charge of his business.

PICNICS.

Two very successful and enjoyable picnics and excursions took place yesterday from this city. One was given at Willamette Grove, a few miles above the city, under the auspices of the Scandinavians of Portland. It was largely attended, and a very agreeable time experienced. The other was held at Oak Grove, on the Columbia, and was given by a number of our Jewish citizens. The affair was well managed and all seemed satisfied with the day's enjoyment.

THE BODY OF DENNIS SPELLEN FOUND NEAR BRIDGE NO. 1 ON THE WEST SIDE RAILROAD—THE REMAINS RIDDLED WITH A BULLET AND BUCKSHOT—A FOUL CRIME COMMITTED.

Coroner A. P. DeLin was notified yesterday afternoon that the body of a man had been discovered a short distance from bridge No. 1 on the west side railroad about one mile and a half south of the city. Summoning a jury the coroner proceeded to the spot where an inquest was held. The following is the testimony of the witnesses who were examined:

ALBERT NEWSOME [illegible]

Testified: I reside in Portland, am an engineer by occupation; I know deceased; his name is Dennis Spellen, he is about [illegible] years of age and a native of Ireland; his occupation is that of a laborer; I last saw him alive on Monday or Tuesday of last week; he was at the corner of [illegible] and First streets, in this city; he was then on his way to his home, a log cabin on the west side of the railroad, about 200 feet from bridge No. 1; I next saw him to-day, between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock, lying dead in a ravine a few feet from his cabin; he had been in the habit of calling at my house two or three evenings of each week; he had not been in for several evenings, and to-day being Sunday a lady remarked that it was strange that Dennis did not come to church, saying that he never missed attending church on Sunday; I told her that I would go out to his cabin and see if he was not sick; I went to the cabin and found the door locked, and in returning across a foot log over the ravine I smelt a strong stench, and looking down into the ravine thought I saw his shoes; I then went down into the ravine and found the body lying under some brush and fern; his head was lying down the hill; I went immediately and notified the coroner; never knew of his having any trouble with anyone, or of his having any enemies; do not think he had any money about him from the fact of his having sent some money to his family only a very short time ago.

DR. [illegible] STRONG

Being sworn, examined the body carefully and submitted the following statement: I visited a spot at the request of A. P. DeLin, the coroner, about a mile from Portland and examined the body of Dennis Spellen and find that deceased came to his death from a gunshot injury in the back described as follows: One large hole in the small of the back which seemed to have gone through and come out of the abdomen. There are 21 small orifices evidently made by buckshot. Judging from the location and character of the wounds I have no doubt that they caused his death.

MATHEW FINNEGAN

Testified: I reside in East Portland, am a teamster by occupation; I know deceased; his name is Dennis Spellen, he is my uncle; last saw him alive two weeks ago in his cabin; he had at that time a post office order for $[illegible] in favor of his wife, said he was going to send it next day; do not think he had any more money about him; he usually sent all his earnings home as fast as earned to his family; Do not know of his having any enemies anywhere; do not know of his ever having had any trouble with anyone. I recognize the body before the jury as that of Dennis Spellen. He was a temperate man. Next saw him dead in the ravine when I went with the coroner to get the body. He was lying with his head down the hill, covered over with brush and fern. His pockets were all turned inside out, as though he had been searched for plunder; his pipe and some papers were scattered about the body.

testified: Reside in Portland; am a bricklayer by occupation; I know Dennis Spellen; last saw him last Tuesday at [illegible]; he had been working for me during the day, and for the last five or six weeks before that time; he was paid every Saturday evening; I expected him on Wednesday, but was disappointed by his not coming as usual, and could not account for his absence. He was a steady, temperate man.

THE VERDICT.

After hearing all the testimony the jury returned the following verdict:

We, the jury find that the name of deceased was Dennis Spellen, a native of Ireland, aged about 47 years, and that he came to his death near his cabin back of the city of Portland on or about the 25th day of June, 1878, by reason of gun shot wounds through his body, and that the same was done by the hands of some person or persons unknown to this jury. Geo. C. Sears (foreman), E. Mendenhall, Henry Wimer, C. A. McCall, W. B. Jones, H. W. Cushing.

The remains were in advanced stages of decomposition, and will be buried this morning. There can be no doubt but that a foul murder has been committed, and the authorities will spare no effort to track up the perpetrator and bring him to justice.

BOARD OF TRADE.

Three o'clock Saturday afternoon a special meeting of the Board of Trade was held at the rooms pursuant to a call issued by the secretary of the board, and signed by a number of the prominent business men and firms of the city, and addressed to Hon. H. W. Corbett, president. As stated in the call, the meeting was for the purpose of considering the expediency of memorializing the secretary of war to suspend the order authorizing the removal of the military head quarters from this city to Vancouver.

Hon. H. W. Corbett, president of the board, was present, also Mr. Reid, secretary.

The attendance was quite large.

The purpose for which the meeting had been called was stated by the president.

A resolution was presented, read and adopted by the board.

The purport of the resolution was expressing the general regret felt by the business men of Portland at the order removing headquarters of the Department of the Columbia from this city to Vancouver. In the resolution is embodied the request that the secretary of war rescind so much of the order relating to the removal as to allow the disbursing officers to remain in the city.

This action of the board has been telegraphed to Washington, and an answer may be anticipated in a few days.

GRADUATING ADDRESS.

EXCELLENT REMARKS OF HON. J. N. DOLPH ON THE OCCASION OF THE COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES OF THE HIGH SCHOOL AT NEW MARKET THEATER THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 27, 1878.

Owing to the crowded state of the columns of THE OREGONIAN, the very appropriate and excellent address delivered to the graduating class of the Portland High school at New Market theater last Thursday evening, by Hon. J. N. Dolph, has not appeared before. The occasion was one of unusual interest, the large theater building being crowded to overflowing with the most fashionable and cultivated people of the city. In every respect the graduating exercises of the High school far eclipsed preceding ones held in this city, and will favorably compare with similar exercises of the older and more prominent institutions of learning in the state. Below we publish Mr. Dolph's address in full:

Members of the Graduating Class: To-day marks an important event in your history. Whether the course of study through which you have passed, and from which you have so honorably graduated, shall end your school days or not, certain it is that other scenes and other duties await you. I am informed that most of you have passed your period of preparation and are now about to enter upon the active duties of life, to make a practical test of the value of the training you have received. Life has been compared, not inaptly, to a voyage. You may be said to-night to be launched upon the open sea for your life voyage. Heretofore older and wiser heads have been in command and more experienced hands have been at the helm. Now you are to take the helm, choose your destination and command your own destiny. You are to become the architects of your own fortunes, to win, if you win at all in the battle of life by your own exertions. Well do I know with what hope and determination you enter the struggle. It is a time in your history calling for new plans, new resolutions, and increased activity. I can understand how anxiously you are considering the future, and how what I may say on this occasion may have an influence upon some of you in shaping your plans for the future. With this feeling I should be false to my own inclinations and prove unjust to you, if I should spend the moments allotted to me in attempting to say something entertaining at the expense of the practical, something which however pleasing it might prove to others, would be like chaff to your inquiring minds. If therefore I shall deal with commonplace, it is because such matters are applicable to every day duties and to the practical concerns of life.

A few days since the corner stone of a fashionable school building was laid in this city with appropriate ceremonies. That was well. All friends of education, progress and good order welcome the advent of every new educational institution. There is room and need in our young state for many such schools. But as a means of universal education the common schools are the hope of the country. They are the outgrowth of the experience of civilized nations, the necessity of every well regulated state, the bulwark of free institutions. Seminaries, universities and colleges can never be in the way of the common schools, and can never supply their places. I am persuaded that no institution of our city reflects greater credit upon the people than our public schools, and that the high school, with its corps of able instructors, affording opportunities for a preparatory course of study equal to most seminaries, open to all youth of the city, is their crowning excellence. I congratulate you upon having enjoyed the advantages of such a school. It is a matter of general congratulation that we have in our city public schools so wisely conducted, so well supported and so generally patronized. I am particularly gratified to find your class so largely composed of ladies. Young ladies you have cause to rejoice at the changes which are slowly but surely taking place in public opinion in regard to the education of your sex, in regard to the new fields of labor and usefulness which are opened to you, and may I be permitted to add in regard to the rights of your sex as members of society and as citizens of the state. I am glad that old customs and prejudices from which women have suffered are giving way, and I welcome you to-night as laborers for social progress, as associates in common duty. You may not be fitted for some of the vocations which may be chosen by some of these young gentlemen. Your inclinations may not lead you to adopt others. But the fact that you have shown yourselves their peers in the pursuit of knowledge thus far, is proof that where fitness and inclination shall lead you hereafter in competition with them, they will find you no unworthy competitors. I should not advise you to enter upon a profession or to adopt a calling. I believe that should depend upon your own inclinations and your circumstances. The domestic relations afford ample opportunities for the development of true womanhood, and grand possibilities for good in the great cause of humanity. But I would impress this thought upon you: You have not been born into the world to be dandled upon the lap of ease; you were not intended by the Creator to be exempt from effort and sacrifice. Human happiness never was and never can be secured by indolence. Duty performed is its price. "Happiness and selfishness are eternally antagonistic." If the world is not made better for your having lived in it, if your time and your talents are not employed to promote the happiness and virtue of the race, you will not have fulfilled the end of your existence, and the leisure and self indulgence which promised happiness will prove the very cause of your greatest discontent. You need not, therefore, let these young gentlemen appropriate what I shall say to-night to themselves, thinking that plans for the future are necessary for them alone. I should suppose the first question which would present itself to you at this time would be whether your apprenticeship in the duties of life is now ended, or whether it shall be continued by the training of the higher education of the college or university. If a college education is within your reach you ought not to neglect the opportunity to acquire it under the somewhat prevalent but mistaken notion that a college education is valuable only for elegance and ornament, and not practically worth the time and cost of its acquirement. However competent you may feel to-day from your history to deal with the practical affairs of life in the strength of your native faculties and the abundance of your resources, you will soon learn, that you have but entered upon the pursuit of knowledge. True education is never completed. It is acquired by slow [illegible]. It is a work of a lifetime, and very [illegible] its most practical and valuable portion is acquired outside of schools. The world is a university; man is our class book and the chief business of life is education." Even a collegiate course can do little more than to lay the foundation of a liberal education, and is more valuable for the mental training it affords, than for the acquisition of facts. A large part of the useful history of men is the result of patient, disciplined thought. It is disciplined thought that makes the world and schools are the instructors and directors of mental powers. And while in many instances the self educated man who has entered upon the education later in life has been [illegible] by natural ability and vigorous application to make up the deficiencies of an imperfect education, I believe it a mistake; the lack of the elegance and of the discipline of the thinking faculties afforded by a thorough collegiate course, has been the source of constant regret. But after all ornament though highly desirable, is far less valuable than practical knowledge, and native good sense with a common school education and persevering industry, is better than a college education and what men call smartness without them. And if a college education is not within your reach, you need not for that reason despair of reaching a high standard of education and an eminent position of usefulness and of influence.

The history of the past discloses the fact that self educated men are frequently as self reliant and successful as those whose education is largely the product of the schools. In our country especially, where desire is thought of the [illegible] of the schools and more of practical knowledge, the self made men who have reached the highest positions of honor and influence in the land are numerous and their history affords ample encouragement to the child of the most humble circumstances. If you have now finished your school days the important question is presented to you of a choice of your vocation in life. This is a question calling for careful consideration, and yet it is an important that the choice be made and acted upon with the best lights at your command. There is a tendency upon the part of young men to crowd into the professions, they present great attractions to the young, but it is the fate of many a young man who chooses a profession to find that he had not counted the cost, that here as elsewhere the price of distinction is unremitting application, and that even with that the realization of the hopes with which he entered his profession is so long delayed that he tires and relaxes his efforts, or stern necessity compels him to look to some vocation requiring less labor or affording speedier returns. Still, young gentlemen, if you have a desire to enter a profession, if you have the determination to succeed by strong, unceasing industry, I would not discourage you. As an eminent lawyer once said to a young man desiring to enter the legal profession: "There is always room in the upper story," and so it is in all the professions. But many other callings present equal, if not greater attractions. No country in the world presents greater inducements to persevering labor and economy than ours, and every field of labor is alike open to all. What a man creates with his own labor of brawn or brain is his, his to enjoy and his to dispose of. Under the operation of beneficent laws for the protection of the fruits of labor, stimulated by general education and universal competition, wonderful inventions for saving labor and for annihilating to a great extent time and space have followed each other in rapid succession. The vast area of our country is being rapidly transformed from the desert and the wilderness into cultivated fields and beautiful homes; the blessings of civilization, art, refinement, schools and churches fill the land; industry is the rule and idleness the exception. Still, we are but in the beginning of our development; on every hand are new fields for enterprise and inviting opportunities for labor and investment, new commercial centers are constantly springing up, new fruits of grazing and agricultural [illegible]

Having chosen a [illegible] your end industry [illegible] dogged application [illegible]

[illegible]

Labor is the law of the Universe. When God said to Adam [illegible] the sweat of thy brow shalt thou eat thy bread all, the Creator [illegible] made no exception. [illegible] the universal law of creation. [illegible] the sons of God shouted for joy [illegible], the order of the universe. Nor is the law of labor any less benignant than the other laws of our being. God saw that it would be good for man to labor; that his happiness would be thereby promoted; that by exercise only could the powers of his being physical, mental, and moral be developed.

Labor, persistent application, is emphatically necessary to success in all literary pursuits. He who would reach distinction in any literary calling must press forward with unremitted resolution, under all discouragements and embarrassments, borne on by an ever growing thirst for knowledge, until love of learning becomes a ruling passion; to stop short of this, is to stop short of the prize, to be content with mediocrity while others outstrip him and win the reward of perseverance and application. An eminent lawyer of a neighboring state is said to have been asked why with so much business he did not take a young man into his office to relieve him of a portion of the labor of his practice, and is reported to have said "I would if I could find one that was not smart." The answer is full of meaning. Young men are wanted to-day, not only in the professions but in every department of life, not for smartness but for work. Then

"Pause not to dream of the future before us;
Pause not to weep the wild cares that come o'er us.
Hark, how creation's deep musical chorus
Unintermitting goes up into heaven.
Never the ocean wave falters in flowing;
Never the little seed stops in its growing;
More and more richly the rose heart keeps glowing Till from its nourishing stem it is riven.

* * * * *

"Droop not though shame, sin and anguish are round thee
Bravely fling off the cold chain that hath bound thee
Look to the pure heaven smiling beyond thee,
Rest not content in thy darkness—a clod.
Work for some good, be it ever so lowly;
Cherish some flower, be it ever so lowly;
Labor! all labor is noble and holy,
Let thy great deed be thy prayer to thy God.

Have an aim in life. The great mass of mankind appear to be aimless. They drift down the stream of time, carried hither and thither by every accidental circumstance. To supply the necessities of life with them is the great struggle, the chief end of existence. As soon ought a man to undertake to construct a house without a plan, or a vessel to put to sea without a destination, as for a young man or woman to start out on life without a life plan, not alone as to vocation, but for self improvement, the prosecution of their education, and for their efforts for the good of others.

Pursue your life plan with constancy. Let the prizes of ambition you accept be within the scope of this plan and relinquish all inconsistent with this aim. You will find it necessary, if you would accomplish much, to forego many things that would divert your time and attention from the execution of your plans. As Ulysses is said to have stopped the ears of his companions with wax and to have lashed himself to the mast of his vessel until he had sailed out of the sound of the fatal songs of the sirens, so you will find it necessary many times to stop your ears to the voice of pleasure and the calls of society, and to lash yourself with stern resolution to the tasks you have set before you.

Some of you may have seen in the newspapers a short time since a statement that a certain eminent statesman said on one occasion, after, as he supposed, his hopes of attaining to the presidency had been destroyed by his course upon some political question, "I am an aimless man." If true, what a history does it disclose. The one great aim of life disappointed; the man of giant intellect, the brilliant orator, the most eminent statesman of his age, aimless. Like a great ship afloat upon the broad ocean without chart or compass, to drift with wind and tide. How grand in comparison was the saying of that other American statesman, who, when defeated for the presidency, is said to have exclaimed, "I would rather be right than be president."

Be content to commence at the beginning. Thoroughness of preparation is essential to success everywhere. There is a class of young men that appear never to have comprehended the necessity of an apprenticeship. They want to step to the top round of the ladder at once. They seek places as book keepers, accountants and cashiers, places of trust and confidence, before they have shown themselves worthy of confidence to fill them. And because men choose to trust their money and business to those who have been tried and found trustworthy and qualified, they go unemployed, living in idleness and dependence. I wish I could say to every young man in the land, to every girl, spero meliora. If you cannot find that to do which you would like to do do anything honest and honorable. No matter what your trade or profession is, sooner than be idle, sooner than be dependent upon others, sooner than resort to questionable employment for a living—while you have a strong body and two good hands, take a buck saw and saw wood, take a shovel and work upon the streets—or get you a basket and hook and pick rags. Industry in any honorable employment, however humble, is better than idleness. To earn a dollar a day sawing wood is more honorable than to beg or borrow. I confess I have no patience with the idea that because a man can not find that to do which he would prefer to do, he is to lie idle and complain of hard times.

Be self reliant. It is necessary to true independence of character to be thrown upon your own resources. The oak in the forest, surrounded by other trees which protect it from the winds, shoots up slender and sickly. Cut away its protectors and the first gale overturns it. The same tree growing upon the bleak mountain side, where it is swept by every blast, only strikes its roots deeper into the firm earth for every shock, and resists the power of the tempest. Some of you may have been compelled already to trust your own powers, and may have already developed a strength and independence of character which will prove of incalculable advantage to you in the future.

The discipline of school studies has had for its object in part to furnish you an arena for intellectual exercise, in which your minds were led to grapple with difficulties and become self reliant by conquest. But most of you have hitherto probably had but little necessity for the exercise of this quality. With parents or friends to provide for you—with good teachers to assist you in your studies, the attainment of knowledge has been comparatively free from difficulties, and has required no extraordinary exertions upon your part. But now that you are about to pass from the period of preparation to active life, to test the strength of your own faculties, and the soundness of your own judgment, it is necessary that you will approach the difficulties of business affairs with a distrust of your own powers and if there are helps at hand to be inclined to lean upon them, to your own disadvantage.

Avoid, on the other hand, arrogant assumption of superiority. Impudence is not self reliance. Modesty is a quality that befits the greatest characters, and want of deference to superior wisdom and experience is positively unpardonable. Many people appear to think that to exalt themselves it is necessary to pull some one else down. Never for a moment indulge in such a spirit. Envy is the mark of little minds, and so far as it will operate from elevating its possessor, will most likely prove the means of preventing his own advancement. Just as a man who, disregarding the rights of others in a crowd and attempting to crowd his way through, will most likely find every one's shoulder thrust purposely thrown in his way. Be generous. Award every man his just merit, and to award unmerited praise to your own merits and exertions is as bad. The person who is constantly inclined to award what all the praise he deserves, and if you are dissatisfied look for the fault in yourself, and with new resolution redouble your exertions to succeed. When tempted to envy the more fortunate, when our ambition for worldly success is disappointed, we might with profit walk in the cemetery and draw a lesson from the scene. As we contemplate the last resting places of the dead and reflect upon the certainty that death is the portion of all and upon the transitory nature of the success we envy, all of those things which excite our ambition, and see how side by side the rich and the poor, the famous and unknown, sleep in the silent city, methinks envy and inordinate ambition alike would vanish, and our thoughts be turned toward those things which will enrich our beings, expand and enlarge the immortal part of our natures which alone can survive the tomb.

Above all, under all circumstances, be honest. Never suffer the hope of worldly advantage to induce you to swerve from a course of strict integrity. Character is worth more than wealth or power or station. Self consciousness of your own integrity of purpose and of life is better than the gratification of worldly success. Faith in our fellows is the basis upon which the transactions of life are had and the business of the world conducted. To be trustworthy in all the relations of life at whatever cost of worldly advantage, should be the determination of every young man and woman. That you may be honest, be economical. Extravagance is the prolific source of dishonesty. Economy has but one definition applicable to every man and woman in every condition of life, and that is "to live within your means." Live within your means if you eat but one meal a day and wear your last year's suit when your neighbors have new clothes. This is a very rare virtue in this age and requires no little moral courage for its exercise. But you can be economical and honest and walk upright in the consciousness of manhood and independence, which is better than living beyond your means and dodging your landlord or tailor.

Never was there greater need for educated, thinking men and women, and for men and women of moral integrity in this country than at the present time. Whatever tests of the strength and stability of our institutions we have been called upon to pass through in the first century of our national existence, the second century of our history, in my judgment, will bring more dangerous and trying tests. You have learned from your study of history the fact that no republic was ever destroyed by opposing arms. From the experience of the past we may learn that the hour when the dissolution of the Union was threatened by foes from within and foes from without, when vast armies were marshaled for its overthrow and civil war filled the land with desolation and death, was not the hour of our greatest peril. The danger of our country to-day is from within. It is mainly from the uneducated class of society. It is threatened in the insidious form of a sentiment that would destroy the noblest of our institutions, the family; that would blot out religion with its restraints; that would sweep away the rights of property, and [illegible] [illegible] to do [illegible] their labor [illegible] of every man's labor the great incentive to labor would be gone.

No man would long willingly labor for those who would not work for themselves. No man would labor except for the present moment. Mankind would sink, if not at once, surely and gradually into the condition of savages. The great inventions would cease, the cultivated fields would grow up to brambles and thorns; the mansion and the cottage would give way to the wigwam and the hovel. Knowledge would decline, arts, refinement, religion and the blessings of civilization would gradually cease to exist. The truth is, that the right of a man to own and enjoy what he earns by the sweat of his own brow goes deeper in the economy of nature than mere human law. It exists in the very nature of things, for the wisest purposes, and any infringement of the right, whether under the forms of law or otherwise is nothing but robbery. It is true that in some instances large fortunes, amassed by superior foresight and skill, and sometimes by questionable means, are used for base and selfish ends, but that does not justify a violation of the rights of property by individuals or the state.

[illegible] you that which you might [illegible] is not the chief end of life. We were [illegible] placed here simply to acquire, and [illegible] and to use for our own selfish ends. [illegible] However honored [illegible] [illegible] was [illegible] power [illegible] you have achieved, if, instead of self sacrifice, the rule of your life has been [illegible] you have stopped your ears against the cry of the fellow and father [illegible]

[illegible] self sacrifice may never present itself to you, but rest assured there are daily tests of patient endurance, self denial and resolute struggle with adverse circumstances in the little affairs of your every day life awaiting you. Many a man who has braved death in the cannon's mouth, who has defied popular opinion and endured persecution with undaunted courage in the defense of principle, who has withstood with firm resolution the great enemies, has sunk under the [illegible] of an [illegible] every day [illegible].

We do [illegible] many [illegible],
But [illegible] always so
[illegible]

Whatever your opportunities, whatever your successes, whatever your disappointments and discouragements, do your duty in the [illegible] of your conduct, and your life work is diligently and faithfully performed, you will have achieved all the success that will be valuable when you come to [illegible] and when you come to leave the world with its ambitions, its strifes and its rewards. The animating principle and controlling sentiment which should urge you on in adversity and prosperity alike, and serve to continued exertion under all circumstances should be "this life of mine must be lived out and a grave thoroughly earned."

In the language of an eminent writer and philanthropist of our own time, "Life is a bubble which any breath may dissolve. Wealth or power a snow flake melting momently into the treacherous deep across whose waters we are floated on to our unseen destiny, but to have lived so that one less orphan is called to choose between starvation and infamy, one less slave feels the lash applied in mere wantonness or cruelty; to have lived so that some eyes of those whom fame shall never know are brightened and others suffused at the name of the beloved one, so that the few who knew him truly shall recognize him as a bright, warm, cheering presence which was here for a season and left the world no worse for his stay in it, this surely is to have really lived, and not wholly in vain."

Among the attractions of "Andrews' Bazar" are the charming letters by Lucy Hamilton Hooper, of Paris; Mary C. Harwood, of New York; Martha J. Lamb, the celebrated Lucy H. [illegible]; Mary B. Dodge, and others. These ladies are first as to fashion, society and household writers, and always know what will interest as well as aid their readers. Send ten cents for a copy of the "Bazar" to W. R. Andrews, Cincinnati.

No remedy ever introduced in the market of Oregon has given more universal satisfaction than the Oregon Blood Purifier. This its certificates prove, as its well established popularity [illegible] people competent to judge [illegible] testimonials [illegible] to satisfy the most skeptical. It has become a family favorite, highly valued in every household. Being perfectly harmless and pleasant in taste, it is easily taken by any child and by the most delicate female, as well as the most robust man. There is no possible danger of any serious results from a continued use of this famous medicine. Oregon's choicest medicinal herbs, carefully selected and scientifically prepared, are the principal ingredients of this celebrated purifier of the blood, regulator of the stomach, bowels and kidneys, and eradicator of any complaint having its origin from a disordered state of these functions, such as Biliousness in its worst form, Costiveness, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Sick Headache, &c. As a guard against fever and ague it is unexcelled. People living in malarious and miasmatic localities, or when the ague is already lodged in the system, should use in addition to the Oregon Blood Purifier the Willamette Fever and Ague Mixture, which is put up especially for the Willamette Valley, and the most certain remedy for Fever and Ague, Mountain Fever, Chills, Intermittent and Bilious Fever, Dumb Ague, etc., &c. Prepared at the Pharmaceutical Laboratory of WM. PFUNDER & CO., corner First and Ash streets.

PLEASURE BOATS.

JOHN LACHAPELLE, Boat Builder, is prepared to furnish Boats for Sale or Rent, at any moment. Boat House foot of Pine street.

Dr. Mintie's Vegetable Nephreticum,

Will cure all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs. Has been used with effect after all other remedies have failed. His English Dandelion Pills a certain cure in all cases of Diseased Liver, Dyspepsia or any Bilious derangement. Many of your leading citizens of this city will vouch as to their merits. To be had of all druggists.

Liver is King.

The Liver is the imperial organ of the whole human system, as it controls the life, health and happiness of man. When it is disturbed in its proper action, all kinds of ailments are the natural result. The digestion of food, the movements of the heart and blood, the action of the brain and nervous system, are all immediately connected with the workings of the Liver. It has been successfully proved that Green's August Flower is unequalled in curing all persons afflicted with Dyspepsia or Liver Complaint, and all the numerous symptoms that result from an unhealthy condition of the Liver and Stomach. Sample bottles to try, 10 cents. Positively sold in all towns on the West-ern Continent. Three doses will prove that it is just what you want.

AMUSEMENTS

THE HAVERLY'S.—Next Wednesday evening the Haverly Minstrels will make their first appearance in this [illegible] the company are [illegible] Victoria [illegible] Haverly's Minstrels [illegible] on the wane In fact [illegible] entertainment [illegible] Last evening they were greeted by another crowded house at [illegible] and were again accorded a most hearty reception The programme although once more thoroughly changed lost none of its attractions on that account and the manner in which it was carried out must have proved acceptable to even the most fastidious The singing of the California quartette the absurdities of Billy Rice the peculiarities of Thatcher and the originalities of Carter and Cushman were excellent The vocal portion of the programme comprised "Over the Hill" [illegible] by J W Freeth "the Darwinian Theory" by Billy Rice "The Sweet By and Bye" by J R D[illegible] admirably sung and loudly encored as well as several well selected songs by Messrs Ross and [illegible] the comical [illegible] and the Debut of Kellogg contributed in a great measure to the success of the entertainment keeping as they did the audience in the [illegible] humor The entertainment was an [illegible] success and the various artists well merited the applause accorded them

THE CONCERT.—Saturday evening's concert at the New Market Theater was very largely attended The occasion being a complimentary [illegible] tendered by the members of the Handel and Haydn Society to their esteemed director W H Kinross The programme was a very well chosen selection of vocal and instrumental solos duets and choruses besides a very efficient orchestra The opening chorus "The Heavens are Telling" showed the society had lost none of its life and vim and general excellence The duet sung by Miss Abrams and Mr Kinross was artistically rendered and vociferously applauded The young lady's voice evinced some careful study and was a marked improvement on anything we have heard from her before Verdi's "Spirit Immortal" sustained principally by Miss Stump and Messrs Morse and Townsdale was far better than what might have been expected It is probably the first time the gentlemen have sung as soloists with chorus and orchestral accessories, and right well did they acquit themselves Mr T's voice especially after a little more training will entitle him to rank high as a vocalist The "Anvil Chorus" which brought the first part of the programme to a close was enthusiastically encored The anvil accompaniment was left to the tender mercies of firemen of the P F D which served to give that performance some additional interest of a local character The orchestral performance of the "Portland Mazourka" introduced some captivating music from the pen of Mr Kinross entitling that gentleman to merit as a composer in addition to his vocal reputation The latter was well demonstrated in the song which followed, "There's Nothing Like a Freshening Breeze" An encore being demanded, was responded with another song The gem of the evening was a pianoforte solo "Pasquinade" by Miss Eugenie Rosenheim Her playing was more than brilliant, the minds of the whole audience seemed wrapped up with the delicious music coming as it did, from such an apt and skillful exponent An encore was of course the result and the audience were kindly entertained with another gem The choruses "Farewell to the Forest" and "The Soldier's Farewell" were given still better than at the previous concert—correctness of time and proper modulation of voice being very noticeable The selection from "Moses in Egypt" showed the society were almost as perfect in new pieces as in the older ones The grand chorus from Sir Michael Costa's oratorio "Naaman" was the choice morsel of the entertainment and consequently left to the last The rendition of it was very effective and demonstrated at once that the material at Mr Kinross' command is of the very best quality Did one feel disposed to criticise any portion of the programme there is of course room for it that task however is better in the hands of the society's accomplished director who is probably familiar with all the perfections and imperfections of his class If it was customary to mention individual voices amongst the chorus singers Mrs Parrish [illegible] Cason would be deserving of special mention her fine alto voice is a great acquisition to the society. It is worthy of remark that not a single person rose from their seat until the last note died away and as the audience passed out great satisfaction was expressed amongst themselves with the evening's entertainment

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Among the acknowledgments made in the last Oregon Churchman for the Good Samaritan Hospital are two hundred and sixty yards of ticking for renewing the beds and the superintendent facetiously asks who will give him the straw to fill the ticking In answer to the above I beg to state that a gentleman has donated a sum of money to purchase half a ton of straw which will be sufficient for all purposes Yours respectfully

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN.

His Wonderful Success

IN THE TREATMENT OF ALL

Chronic and Difficult Diseases.

He has astonished the People of this Coast by his skillful Operations.

HE HAS TAUGHT IN HIS

public and private lectures the true principles of health and [illegible] to both male and female He has also warned them against that which would be likely to [illegible] plain and comprehensive language But where he has found them crushed and broken down by disease mentally and physically he has restored them to health and happiness for it is well understood that without health there can be no happiness.

has made a specialty in the treatment of the following diseases Catarrh Bronchitis and all diseases of the throat and chest by an entirely new system only known to himself Diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs including Spermatorrhœa Seminal Weakness or premature loss of Manhood In the treatment of these diseases he has made a world wide reputation by his astonishing success not only on this Coast but throughout the whole United States Diseases of the stomach bowels liver and kidneys as well as all diseases of the blood and skin he has become master of and never fails to give relief at once and permanently cures the case if he is applied to in time

THE DOCTOR HAS GIVEN SPECIAL LECTURES

to ladies only for years and is perfectly familiar with all female complaints and understands their delicate and refined organization as well as the proper remedies which should be used to allay their suffering and restore them to perfect health

THE DOCTOR HAS THIS ADVANTAGE

over most physicians—he can tell the patients disease the moment he comes in contact with them without any aid from the individual This accounts in part for his great professional success

All surgical operations can be performed by his skillful hand and the patient need not fear the result.

will send to those living at a distance and who can not well visit his office a list of Printed Questions and by the answers when filled out he can tell the disease as well as the proper treatment almost as well as seeing the patient personally and will forward the proper medicines or instruments to any part of the country with full instructions and advice Each letter requiring advice or list of questions must contain two postage stamps

Everything strictly confidential and honorable

THE DOCTOR

has studied in the best Medical Schools in Europe and three years in the Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia as more than one of the Medical men of the Medical Faculty in this State can testify

CAUTION

Persons coming to Portland requiring medical treatment of the proper kind who desire to consult with me will please beware of persons who may try to coax them away to other so called Doctors through pretended friendship for the patients Look out for them they are knaves prompted by selfish motives and what they can make Be sure and ask for DR PAUL M BRENAN the Medical Lecturer and read his sign on his door
